

BRS Save #126

The trike pilot banked into a descending spiral to get down quickly. Pulling out hard from the spiral, the Tukan trike's control bar downtubes collapsed at 1,500 feet. The trike began to enter a spin and raced toward the ground.

“I was in a tight spiral when my downtubes buckled. The wing folded back like a butterfly landing on a window ledge. When I pulled, witnesses said I was no more than 150 from the ground. I'm alive to write this letter. I thank God and you, BRS!”
